Up above I see specks of silver in the evening sky Specks of gold in the river running from the deep moonlight
See us shake in the wild distortion of the waters waves Still I know you're in the darkness shining from a mile away

Oh when the sun starts coming through
Or when the cardinal chides the moon
I believe in energies that no one has to see for us to prove
I believe in you and me and everything we'll ever see
and do

Hear your voice come across the pillows whisper sweet and low
In the dark we're disappearing, in the dark we'll go
Up above I see specks of silver in the evening sky Specks of gold in the river running from the deep

Oh when the sun starts coming through
Or when the cardinal chides the moon
I believe in energies that no one has to see for us to
prove
and do

The rain falls down in a million rivers
All through the sand with the silver slivers
And it keeps on comin'
How it gives my heart blood
How it gives my heart blood

Or when the cardinal chides the moon
I believe in energies that no one has to see for us to
prove
and do

I believe in you and me, woman I do
