Got a feeling inside me lâ $\in$ <sup>TM</sup> m falling like rain As lâ $\in$ <sup>TM</sup> m watching the time quickly twist down the drain

And I thought youâ $\in$ ™ d be fine in the arms of another I lost track of time with my head in the gutter but I feel a bit better whenever I hear youâ $\in$ ™ re in town even now that youâ $\in$ ™ re gone.

And you said you' d believe me once I left for good When we met up for drinks in the old neighborhood l' ve got a sneaking suspicion you' ve learned your lesson just now

Do you remember the night I found you on the stairs? To the sound of the train and the scraping of chairs And with tears in your eyes you cried,  $\hat{a} \in \hat{a} \in \mathbb{R}^m$  m coming loose at the seams and I scream when I think of you  $\hat{a} \in \mathbb{T}$  ve got nothing but time,  $\hat{a} \in \mathbb{T}$  m losing my mind so  $\hat{a} \in \mathbb{T}$  m through. $\hat{a} \in \mathbb{T}$

Then your face turned blue

And you said you' d believe me once I left for good When we met up for drinks in the old neighborhood l' ve got a sneaking suspicion you' ve learned your lesson just now

And you thought that l' d leave you once I learned the truth

When we got lost as hell in that old photo booth  $\hat{a} \in \mathbb{T}$  ve got a funny feeling youâ $\in \mathbb{T}$  re up on the ceiling no talking you down this time

So you left and I fell

Trying to drop a new dime down the old wishing well And I crept from my shell,

Tried to put my life savings on the end of it all

And you said you' d believe me once I left for good When we met up for drinks in the old neighborhood l' ve got a sneaking suspicion you' re learning your lesson just now

Got a feeling inside me lâ $\in$ <sup>TM</sup> m falling like rain As lâ $\in$ <sup>TM</sup> m watching the time quickly twist down the drain
