i open up the door and you come rushing in shake me to the core with a your silly grin there shouldn't be any more room for the pain you tell me again and again it's okay how do we get back to the beginning these crushing days are begging that question maybe you can give me a reason make it up if you have to we can shatter what we were change the things that went before i'll show you what we do this for cover me, cover me shelter is what you can give trust you 'til we reach the end i would do it all again cover me, cover me this time all the bets are off until the sunrise corners are cut so open up your eyes no one here is waiting to be set free except you and me i know - you're the one who understands me my ghost will come back to when he's feeling lonely
