Lovers they come and go, never wanting truth to show.
I don't know what to do with you.
Farther than the eye can see, this future holds for me.
Let's take a ride to the road where no one goes.

You sit with a grin that holds your past, and you never took, you never took, you never took away mine it came
so fast.

You're making it hard to see, between the lines of you and me, show me what you're trying to say, and I won't forget your name.

Like shivers going down your spine, you broke my trust
with every line, there's no point in continuing.
The way these leaves are falling, are not the way they used to fall, and I guess just let it be.

You sit with a grin that holds your past, and you never took, you never took, you never took away mine it came
so fast.

You're making it hard to see, between the lines of you
and me, show me what you're trying to say, and I won't
forget your name.

Eyes fall shut, and tears slip through, I don't think I can ever forgive you.
Ever forgive you.

I can't see between these lines of you, and me
