Darling you should know by now
That if everything should end tonight
We would still come through somehow
With a head full of flavors and a handful of light
And the voices that are singing inside us
Will provide us with the faith to go on
And they'll bind us together and guide us
Through the dark of the dawn
Darling you should know by now
That our souls will never quite be still
We'll stay heart to heart somehow
With the sleep of the angels
And the strength of our will
And the voices that are singing around us
Will surround us with the words we inspire
And they'll drown us together
With sounds of our death and desire
And the voices that are singing behind us
Will remind us of the time at the start
"To love and to honor and cherish 'til death do us part"
And keep us together forever with love in our hearts
