I hear your questions, I see your face
Your life before you is full of grace
What can I tell you to let you know?
Your angel's eyes will watch you grow

Come listen close and I'll try
I'll try to let you know
It's all I know

There is no magic, there are no secrets
We all begin this race at the start
Oh, but I have come this far
With a truth of the heart

Deep down inside, I think, we're all the same
Try not to judge someone and never shame
I do believe that people are good
They just want hope and respect and to be understood

Sometimes it hard, sometimes it's strange
But the truth of the heart is people can change

There is no magic, there are no secrets
We all begin this race at the start
Oh, and I have come this far
With a truth of the heart

Yes, there is danger, there are shadows
And there is fear inside the dark
It has powered countries and borne religion
Fear can never rule the heart

My father's burden and my mother's rain
My own desire, my sister's pain
All souls have traveled along this road
And each one has carried their own heavy load
An' I have come this far

There is no magic, there are no secrets
We all begin this race from the start
And I have come this far
Oh, that's all I know that I have come this far

Ohh, I have come this far
With a truth of the heart
Find it in your heart
