(Dallas Frazier - Sanger D. Shafer)

He's my dream painter my weather changer
The rainbow that he paints for me won't let it rain
He's my dream painter my sunshine maker
L-O-V-E love should be his name.

He took my world of emptiness and framed it up with happiness
And touched up all my lonely yesterdays
Without one word he's made it plain
That I've seen my last drop of rain.

From now on there'll be sunshine all the way Before I held him in my arms until he came into my heart
I had my doubts about this thing called love
The better things in life are free I shouldn't let it bother me
But it just don't seem fair to have so much...
