Heavy all the branches,
Hanging from my fucked up family's tree

And heavy was my father, a stoek man of pride and privacy
And I don't care much for wishful thinking
Is heavy as I breathe

Because I don't belive in second chances
Is heavy as I live
As powerfull as a man he was,
Pride my father never was of me

I did it for survival, but I look like the asshole anyway
You eat up all my breadcrumbs
Now I'm lost alone inside your cage
Among 6 billion people
I want the ones who never won and meet
I'm not one for religion,
But I can't see to ditch this energy

And I don't care much for wishful thinking
Is heavy as I breathe
Because I don't belive in second chances
Is heavy as I live

And I don't care much for wishful thinking
I can't breathe

Heavy all the branches
