Everyone knows, just how far you'd go,
To get where you've been, you wear it like skin
And I'm calling you out
Everyone's seen, just how far you've been,
To get what you need, you're wearing it thin
And I'm calling you out

Don't believe anything she tells you

You stole my lucky star
And I'll find you wherever you are
And I'll slit your throat and I'll smash your car
Until you give me back my lucky star

Everyone knows, just how far you go,
To get in my head, you're in everybody's bed
And I ain't calling you now
Everyone's seen, just how underneath,
My skin you've been, you'll never see me again
I'm calling you out

Don't believe anything she tells you

You stole my lucky star
And I'll find you wherever you are
And I'll slit your throat and I'll smash your car
Until you give me back my lucky star

I'm coming out of my hole
Vie predetermined that you don't know how to rock or to roll
This place is old and it's cold
Cause you can't make it hot
You fake it till the trend gets old

You stole my lucky star
And I'll find you wherever you are
And I'll slit your throat and I'll smash your car
Until you give me back my lucky star
