Say your prayers, cause everyone will notice, and everyone will care.

Fall asleep, cause sleeping was for angels, and angels never cared.

Let freedom ring like the church bells and the choir that never made a sound.

No one could see the lightning that's connecting the storm cloud to the ground.

You'll never make it alive.

The sugar cane and the blood red sun, will not overcome what you have done. What matters most is how well you walk through the fire.

Burning in water, drowning in flames;

And all that you know, all that you see, all that you love is what's breaking me, down

Again, it's breaking me
