Mesh - Trust You

They wait for you with open arms
They testify your charms
And lovers understand
The future that you've planned

But all the people you took advantage of
(They were less than nothing to you)
And all the faces
That tried to give you love

I was just beginning to trust you
But you let me down again
And it has to be said
That you're cruel in the head
And you're spiteful
I was just beginning to like you

Sometimes pleasure is the key
That unlocks honesty
An openness of mind
That opens doors for me

But all the stories that you were making up
(They were only part of the lie)
And all the favours that you were using up

I was just beginning to trust you
But you let me down again
And it has to be said
That you're cruel in the head
And you're spiteful
I was just beginning to like you

I was just beginning to trust you it seems
At the point that you needed to un-pick the seams
Of the life around you
When love surrounds you
And now it's too late
Why do you hate so much?

And all the people you took advantage of...

I was just beginning to trust you...
