"Trust You"

They wait for you with open arms
They testify your charm
And lovers understand
The future that you've plan

But all the people you too advantage of
There was nothing to you
And all the faces that tried to give you love

I was just beginning to trust you
But you let me down again
And it has to be said that you're cruel in the head
And you're spiteful
I was just beginning to like you

Something pleasure if the key that unlocks honesty
And openness of mind
That opens doors for me
But all the stories
That you were making up
They were only party of the lie
And all the favors you were using up

I was just beginning to trust you
But you let down again
And it has to said that you're cruel in the head
And you're spiteful
I was just beginning to like you

I was just beginning to trust you it seems
At the point that you needed to unpick the seams
Of the life around
When love surrounds you
And now it's too late
Why do you hate so much?

And all the people you took advantage of
And all the faces that tried to give you love

I was just beginning to trust you
But you let me down again

And it has to be said that you're cruel in the head
And you're spiteful
I was just beginning to trust you

And I wait for you with open arms
I was just beginning to trust you
And I wait for you with open arms
I was just beginning to like you
And it has to be said that you're cruel in the head
And it has to be said that you're cruel in the head
I was just beginning to like you
And it has to be said that you're cruel in the head
And it has to be said that you're cruel in the head
I was just beginning to trust you
