I see running feet, runnin' in time,
I hear ringing bells, ringing in my mind,
And I try.
I taste disdain on your tongue
And I smell something is already done
And I try to be right.

But there's nothing to believe in anymore,
There's nothing to believe in, anymore.
But I tried.

I feel their eyes on my back,
Putting me through all of their silent tests.
But I try to be right.

But there's nothing to believe in, anymore,
There's nothing to believe in, anymore (oh, oh, oh).
There's nothing to believe in, anymore,
But I tried.
But I tried.
Oh, but I tried.

There's nothing to believe in, anymore,
There's nothing to believe in, anymore,
There's nothing to believe in, anymore (oh, oh, oh).
There's nothing to believe in, anymore
But I tried.

(Woah, woah, oh)

(Woah, woah, oh)
