Look at the time, where did it go?
How did it get so late again?
Quarter to six, what do you know?
Let's call this evening to an end

Where do I go? What do I say
When I really want to stay?
And where does the time go?

Look at my face, look at my tears
Look at me laughing it off
Facing the facts, facing my fears
Listening to magic and loss

Everything's good, even the pain
Time heals all wounds again and again
And where does the time go?

Where does the time go?
Where did the time go?

Who turned the clock back?
How could I not see?
When did the glass crack?
Where did the time go?

When did the end come?
Should I have known when
Reaching the last row?
Where did the time go?

I should have known when
Reaching the last row
Where did the time go?

Look at the time, I really should run
A whole day of work yet to be done
And nothing I say, and nothing I feel
Are half as real as you

Nobody knows, nobody sees
No one but you here and me

And where does the time go?
Where does the time go?

Where does the time
