How does saying nothing at all become so loud?
When does the silence settle in?
Nothing's wrong but nothing's right
We hold our breath and close our eyes
And skate out on that ice that's wearing thin

How do we get so numb, it don't even hurt?
Yeah, why are we so comfortably still?
Here we are pretending that we're doing fine
Just scratching at the surface, just getting by Don't you think it's time that we feel something real?

I want tears, I want rain
If that's what leads me back to you
Even if that means feeling the pain
If that's what we gotta do

Let it fall apart, come on and break my heart
Yeah, break it right in two
'Cause I don't wanna smile if that means losing you
I want tears

The kind that you can't help and you can't hold back
The ones that are waiting bursting at the seams
Baby, can't we find the strength
To just let go and make a change?
'Cause I need something more to make me believe

I want tears, I want rain
If that's what leads me back to you
Even if that means feeling the pain
If that's what we gotta do

Let it fall apart, come on and break my heart
Yeah, break it right in two
'Cause I don't wanna smile if that means losing you

Remember what we used to have
And baby, don't you want it bad?
Baby, we can get it back

I want tears, I want rain

If that's what leads me back to you
Even if that means feeling the pain
If that's what we gotta do

Let it fall apart, come on and break my heart
Yeah, break it right in two
'Cause I don't wanna smile if that means losing you
I don't wanna smile if that means losing you
I want tears

How does saying nothing at all become so loud?
