"Too Many Cooks", produced by John Lennon and recorded by Jagger in 1973 in Los Angeles. The track features guitarists Danny Kortchmar and Jesse Ed Davis, keyboardist Al Kooper, bassist Jack Bruce, drummer Jim Keltne

Don't want another man, well loving you
'Cause too many cooks, will spoil the soup
I know your love, is a boiling hot
Don't want another man's, finger in the pot
You know your love, is finger lickin' good to me
Don't want another man changin' my recipe
Don't want another man, lov-in' you
'Cause too many cooks, will spoil the soup
Don't change, don't let nobody change, yeah
Don't change, don't let nobody change
She got, enough sugar, sugar and spice
The main ingredient, to make a your lovin' right
Don't want nobody, stickin' fingers down in the pot
Don't wanna see you ever get down lickin' it up
Your love is seasoned, just right for me
Don't want nobody, changin' my re-cipe
Don't wanna try nobody new
'Cause too many cooks, will spoil the soup
Don't change, don't let nobody change, yeah
Don't change, don't let nobody change
Yeah, every time I see you, learning something new
A who's been teachin' you, the thing to do
Yeah, don't want nobody drinkin' from my cup
Don't wanna see you ever get down lickin' it up
Well, don't change, don't let nobody change, yeah
Don't change, don't let nobody change
Well, I need a love that's seasoned right for me
Don't want another man changin' my-recipe
Don't want another man, lovin' you
'Cause too many cooks, they will spoil the soup
Don't change, ahh
Sing a song...
Well, don't change, don't let nobody change
Don't change, don't let nobody, whoa
Don't change, don't let nobody change

Don't change, don't let nobody, whoa
Well no
Well, nobody
Ain't gonna (faint)
Ain't gonna let nobody
Ain't gonna
Nobody change
I ain't gonna
Ahh-haa
Stick it out, come on now
I'm goin' now
My baby
Just a walkin'
Whoo
Don't-change
