If she seems cold and bitter
I beg of you stop and consider all she's been through
Don't be quick to condemn her for things she might say
Oh don't blame her, life turned her that way.

She's been walked on and stepped on so many times
And I hate to admit it but that last footprint's mine
She was crying when I met her, she cries harder today
Oh, don't blame her, life turned her that way.

She's been walked on and stepped on so many times
And I hate to admit it but that last footprint's mine
She was crying when I met her, she cries harder today
Oh, don't blame her, life turned her that way.

Oh, don't blame her, life turned her that way...
