You see these little teardrops in my eyes
You ask me if I'll ever love again
I don't think you really meant to hurt my heart
That's on the mend
You sure know how to hurt a friend.

You tell me she still looks the same
And I'm trying to forget her name
I don't want the memory of her
Hangin' around me again
You sure know how to hurt a friend.

Each time I hear her name I hurt again
Thoughts of our good love race through my brain.
To hurt with every thought Oof her
I know would be a sin
You sure know how to hurt a friend.

Her neon memory lights up my heart
You mention her again it might start.
Teardrops falling from my eyes
May never stop again.
You sure know how to hurt a friend.

You sure know how to hurt a friend.
You sure know how to hurt a friend...
