"The Ocean"

through timeless ages in words of sages a great mystery lies of the child inside in whom we confide to unshroud the secret we try I've seen this place I've been here before I've seen what mankind has in store (but time is so concealing) his vision recoured through sands of time his fabled riddle finds reason in rhyme of the most distant reaches and what it teaches where does the truth lie?
I've seen his face and this familiar place the echoes silent but the message bright a message comes through the night but the myth veils our second sight a glimpse of what may lie beyond to know the truth, Thy will be done
