You've read about it in books, you've heard it on the
grapevine,
Don't doubt you'll find love, you and her will make wine.
Crushing unforbidden fruit underfoot,
You'll drink up, stand up tall, be understood.
You've read about it in books, you've heard it on the
grapevine,
Don't doubt you'll find love, you and her will make wine.
Crushing unforbidden fruit underfoot,
You'll drink up, stand up tall, be understood.
You'll connect by similar perspectives
In complimentary reflections like positives from negatives.
Finding simple linkages like ones and noughts,
Basic as smoke signals and Morse.

You won't be feeling lonely
You won't be, when you're in love,
You won't be feeling lonely,
You won't be, when you're in love.
She won't want nobody else but you
She won't want nobody else.
She won't want nobody else but you
She won't want nobody else.

Playing with fire before your time is dangerous
But you're going to burn with the right girl anyway, Cause you're a safety match and need her strip to set
you alight,
You'll consume each other in naked flames until night,
When you'll sit around a campfire inhaling gasoline.
Warming your hands on her breath, sitting like plasticine dolls
While the fumes make you dizzy,
And the heat melts your hips together, linking you by midi.
You'll hold each other's hands with Blue Peter playfulness.
You were both made earlier and need each other's staples
Just to complete your composite image of love,
And realise what life was always capable of.

You won't be feeling lonely
You won't be, when you're in love,
You won't be feeling lonely,
You won't be, when you're in love.
She won't want nobody else but you
She won't want nobody else.
She won't want nobody else but you
She won't want nobody else.

You won't be feeling lonely
You won't be, when you're in love,
You won't be feeling lonely,
You won't be, when you're in love.
She won't want nobody else but you
She won't want nobody else.
She won't want nobody else but you
She won't want nobody else.
