The wind is blowing so hard
I can't hear my name
Being called up on like overtures
In times of yesteryear

Hear the wind blow everyday
Seems this routine never strays
I was following the breeze
But the breeze would always change for me

In the southern state it's calm
The flag is limp, the pledge goes on
Up north it's raining hard
The wind is tearing down this place

In the basement we can hide
The sirens scream
I'm waiting for the silence to decide
Is it safe for me to go outside?

I heard the ground was shaking
Followed by some greed
To help the world turn upside down
And undermine this fallen town

To hear the wind blow everyday
Seems this routine never strays
I was following the breeze
But the breeze would always change for me

In the southern state its calm
The flag is limp, the pledge goes on
Up north it's raining hard
The wind is tearing down this place

In the basement, we can hide
The sirens scream
I'm waiting for the silences to decide
Is it safe for me to go outside?
