Mama lies on the couch in her old wedding gown
She turned pale long before the carnival had left town
She stares at the front porch on the outlook for dad
"Don't worry, I'll be back in a week" is the last thing he said
We all knew he gambled in the city and lost Money we didn't have must've been the line that he crossed
It's been over a year instead of a week
Here in our house, our house by the creek

Me and my family live in the Netherlands
In the house daddy built with his bare hands
My younger brother Jimmy is playing outside
With his cap gun he tries to shoot planes from the sky
In his chair by the window sits uncle Fred Since he's back from the war there ain't a word he has
said
And Freckles my sister she passed away sir Sometimes in my dreams I catch up with dad and with her
What we end up with is not what we seek

Here in our house, our house by the creek

My name is Louis, it's Louis, all right
I play dad's old accordion all day and all night
I just turned eleven, so I'm still a kid
But when I grow up I wanna find out what daddy did Mister believe me, I was taught not to cry
And that family should stay together 'till the day that you die
Yeah mister believe me, I was taught boys don't cry
And that the town where you're born is the town where you'll die
That the town where you're born is where you'll probably die

What did God wanna show when He created man weak
We don't understand in our house by the creek
