I've never been so lonely
In this desereted trail
Even though you hold my hand
Your hand is so cold and frail
Gentle breath and tenderness
Come words that you once told me
Somehow those words that you say
They make me much less lonely crashes the cold of the night and roses all wither away

The night and the flower cannot overpower the words that I want you to say
You may slip and you may slide, but you got an angel
by your side
Hold you in his arms, keep you safe from harm

I heard those words a thousand times before
And I've said them a thousand more
But hearing those words, believing those words
Was a thing I never did explore See, I just wanted to be a better son, a better friend, a better man, a better whatever
So the next time I walk this path again I'll walk it with a true friend

by your side
Hold you in his arms, keep you safe from harm
by your side
Hold you in his arms, keep you safe from harm
by your side
Hold you in his arms, keep you safe from harm
Yeah...
Keep you safe from harm...
Yeah...
Keep you safe from harm...
Yeah...
Father in the sky, he loves you more than I
[SECOND PROGRESSION]
I'd rather be with you than without

Within you than about you
And I come to find out you want the same
Oh lord I want to breath you
May my every movement free you
From the place I've kept you locked up all these days

I'd rather be with you than without
Within you than about you
And I come to find out you want the same
Oh lord I want to breath you
May my every movement free you
From the place I've kept you locked up all these days

I'd rather be with you than without
Within you than about you
And I come to find out you want the same
Oh lord I want to breath you
May my every movement free you
From the place I've kept you locked up all these days
