"Farewell"

Through time and space
My rebel spirit travel
Following by hope to find
Your neverdying soul

But where, I don't know
It seems that once I beheld you
For a moment
But as fallen star
Thou hidden from me
Beyond the horisont
Just saying' me: "Farewell"

Six thousand years had gone away
My flesh decayed
And rustless Chronos
Turned our bodies to dust
And our names became a remembrance

Enrised by hate and despair
I'd been resurrected
To be a shadow abroad life
To be eternal prisoner
In the City of Dead

Where is no mean in good and evil
Where is no neither good nor bad
Where is the clocks forever stop
Anmd winds never disturb
A silence of this walls

And only gore of perished souls
That turned to final graven dusk
Break endless grey moveless fog

There is no memory about past
There is no hopes ahead

And only my sorrow scream
A call of quivering fetus,
Sealed in the sarcoffag

A song you never hear
Will fill the air and disappear:

-Farewell!

Farewell life, obsolete thing of my existence
Farewell God, you refused me, between us
There is abyss of unreachable distance
Farewell Satan, when I beg you to burn my soul
You turned back from me

...But in this grim place
Strange detail I remarked
Oh, if you look into the sky
You'll see the stars so brightly shine

Forever!

And never die and fall never...
