She's got a box full of letters,
that she looks through every day, she must know every word by heart.

She's somebody else's baby,
the kind that will tell you right away,
and she's not tearing herself apart.

She's twice my age but I don't care
[twice my age but I don't care]
I can see her house from here

I want a small place in her heart
I can be the gap between the beats
Crackin' her voice when the tour is hard

There's probably not much that I can do, but I'm alone and so are you
I know a place safe from the dark

It's far away but it's within reach
[It's far away but it's within reach]
If you're okay with company..

Getting back at you
Getting back at him
Getting back to you
And all he ever did was lead you on

She's got a box full of letters
That she re-reads every night
Now's the bar's about to close

She's somebody else's baby, but as far as I can see
I am the only one he knows

She's twice my age but I don't care
[twice my age but I don't care]
I can see her house from here

She's twice my age but I don't care
[twice my age but I don't care]
I can see her house from here

Just say the word and I'll be there

Getting back at you
Getting back at him
Getting back to you
And all he ever did was do you wrong

Do you wrong, do you wrong..

Now all he ever did was do you wrong.
