Title: Supergirl

-----

These are all the things I never got to say to you Things I don't even tell my friends

This is a song that I've been humming on for way too long
The hidden track left at the end

You're such a snob, but you're such a super girl
But anyday now they'll know You're such a snob, but when reconsiderin', you've got all the things I want..

These are the streets we walked, the memories we're leaning on
These are the images I've saved
These are the girls I should've left alone, I'd been better off
This is where I am today

You're such a snob, but you're such a super girl
Anyday now they'll know You're such a snob, but if you get through to me, then I won't have to walk alone

This is the t-shirt I've been carrying for all these years
It's got your picture on the front
This is the pride I take in wearing it and sharing it
With everyone who needs to know

You're such a snob, but you're such a super girl
But anyday now it'll show
You're such a snob, but you're such a super girl
Think it's time you sang along.

This one's for rock'n'roll, for magazines, for radio
For all the times it knocked me out
This one's for showing up when everyone thought you were gone

This one's for never giving up.

You're such a slob, but you're such a super girl
Now it's time to carry on
You're such a slob, but you're such a super girl
Here's a heart that you'd want

You're such a slob, but you're such a super girl
Anyday now you'll be known
You're such a slob, but you're such a super girl
Those whom the gods love grow young
Those whom the gods love grow young
