Early morning and late night
Messages are trap on the rooftop
It's the same imaginary letters we send
For our greetings, storytelling
Sometimes silence affects our fingers
In pointing which button to push
I think this happened before when I knew you
But things have changed since the time that I saw you
You send your smile
So also mine

I can't forget the words you said
I'm better now

We're exchanging emotions
Your sadness faints my heart
And my happiness lights your darkened face
I wished I could turn back time to erase our mistakes
And replace our wrong past to what's present
I gently close my eyes and slowly think of you
In this moment of calmness
I guess we are the only ones
Who are awake in this hour late night
So romantic
You forward goodnight
So let's sleep tight

It's not yet time but you said goodnight
You bid a goodnight

So what's the point in all of these
I hope you know 'cause you're always waiting
You're always waiting
There's no such thing in all of these
I hope you care 'cause you're always waiting
You're always waiting
For me to say that I care for you
