Still remember when I first saw her face it was just your average day it was May or maybe June I think I remember, I ran home and told my mom I was in love she said Corey your just to young to even understand the word and I don't think your in it at all

It was first time in my life that I had ever felt this way inside and I knew that it was real it was the first time the first time just like the snow fall coming down in June impossible but it could be true and I knew that it was real it was the first time

Man you should of seen us holding hands telling our jokes and making plans knowing it our hearts it was the start of our ever after it was then I knew there could never be anyone for her but me and deep down in her heart she knew it too I'm telling you

It was first time in my life that I had ever felt this way inside and I knew that it was real

impossible but it could be true and I knew that it was real
it was the first time

Then one day we got the news her and her family had to move there wasn't anything we could do then I turned and watched her walk away all my sunshine turned to rain I don't wanna feel that way again

It was first time in my life that I had ever hurt so much inside and I knew that it was real it was the first time the first time

had ever felt this way inside and I knew that it was real
it was the first time
