You come over here, to tell me that it's over,
The longest half mile drive of your life.
So wipe the salty tears now in your eyes,
Hold my hand in yours, just one last time...
Say Goodbye!

Closer than I ever thought I'd been before,
But misreading you was always my forte.
And maybe you're right, this is good for me,
To walk a mile or two of life on my own.
On my own

Take the pain built up inside over time,
And you think you could just throw it all in my face.
Give way for memorie, good or bad throw them away.
Time can heal all wounds or so I've heard.
And I hope it's true!

Closer than I ever thought I'd been before,
But misreading you was always my forte.
And maybe you're right, this is good for me,
To walk a mile or two of life on my own.
On my own

Say Goodbye...
Just say Goodbye...
Goodbye, goodbye, goodbye...
Say Goodbye!!!!

Closer than I ever thought I'd been before,
But misreading you was always my forte.
And maybe you're right, this is good for me,
To walk a mile or two of life on my own.
On my own
