You could say I'm just a good ol' boy

Dipped in the batter, country fried

Washed in the blood, wrapped in camouflage

A staunch defender of the right side.

I grew up accustomed to the rebel flag,

Under the shadow of the cross,

Down where the colors never mixed too well,

Some folks still mad 'cuz the south lost.

But I'm a good-hearted, free-thinking son-of-a-gun,

I may talk a little trash, but I don't hate anyone.

[Chorus:]

I love black people, I love brown people,

I love muslims and jews, hindus and atheists too,

Yes, I love everyone.

I love gay people, No I'm not afraid people,

I may sing with a drawl, keep a little slack in my jaw, but
I love everyone.

My roots are buried in the Georgia clay,

They keep me well-grounded and strong

That little town off of the interstate

Is the only place I'll ever call home.

But I've been above the Mason-Dixon line,

Flew across the ocean too

I've seen God's children everywhere I've been

They love to laugh as much as we do.

So I'm careful of the pride that goes before the fall.

I'm one for mending a fence instead of building walls.

I love black people, I love brown people,

I love muslims and jews, hindus and atheists too,

Yes, I love everyone.

No I'm not gay people, but I'm not afraid people,

I may sing with a drawl, keep a little chew in my jaw, but I love everyone.

It ain't the corn bread or the collard greens

Sweet tea or bar-b-que

The country music on your radio, or the gospel in the pew

It ain't your boots, it ain't your old blue jeans,

The tractors that we drive,

It ain't the rifles, or the fishing poles, or the slower pace of life,

It's how we treat our neighbors that makes us who we are.

I love black people. I love brown people.

I may sing with a drawl, keep a little slack in my jaw, but I love everyone.

I may sing with a drawl, keep a little chew in my jaw, but I love everyone.
