

Modern Day John "Dim Reflection"

I melt into the world around me away from You (2)
Worship the possessions that surround me away from
You
Standing on the peak of isolation away from You (2)
I breathe the stench of desolation away from You
The more I have the more I crave in the land of the me and the home of the slave
My dim reflection is bending away from You (2)
The god of convenience I'm inventing away from You A dim reflection that I hate my heart still screams it's not too late
And all the tears that fill my eyes
Fade in the glory of Your prize
I feel the hands that form the seas
Reach down from heaven to touch me
Why can't my heart see?
When will I finally see?
Cleanse my eyes so I can see and break my heart to set me free
Pour out my will, my thoughts,
My pride send down your flame to burn inside
