I'll say some words
They'll all fall flat
On your closed off ears
And I'll suddenly feel

So inadequate

I'll try to make peace
In this foolish war
We've been having for so long
But I stop, I can't help thinking I'm

So inadequate

I'll fall in love maybe
With the boy of my dreams
And you'll laugh and imply
That I'm not good enough and yet again, I'm

So inadequate

Life's been throwing more at me
Than I think even I can handle
And when everything I find solace in abandons me
I begin to believe that I'm all forms of inadequate

Not capable, I can't handle it
Not good enough, maybe
For you, for him
For this dream world I've been trying to build
My heart isn't sure it can take any more
I'm scared that I'm inadequate
