Ro loiscit na lama-sa.
Ro coiscit na gnima-sa.
Thu chÃ°ai d tuile, tÃ°inic trÃ°ig
Coro of bÃ°i d na briga-sa.
A-tloch don DÃ°ilam ain
Fuar sochor co sÃ°irme dair
Tr FATA mo of LÃ°i l m bethai d'zaig
Ro of bÃ° Ã°air co h Ã°illemail

ROP-sam Ã°ille airechta
Fuar mnÃ°i tÃ°ide tabarta
NI of tlÃ°iith a-tÃ°ic trial don bith
Ro scÃ°ich B'rith rabarta mo
In brÃ°arÃ°n becc brisi siu
Don trÃ°agÃ°n trÃ°ag troiscthe-sea:
Me ar cloich de, me ar cnÃ°im
Me ar in lÃ°im loiscthi-sea

Great song. I understand it is Middle Irish - Early Twelfth Century and attributable from the Finean cycle of poetry..."Ro loiscit na lama-sa" means, as far as I can tell "withered are these arms," but I can't find anything else...
