"The Prisoner"

You've thrown away the world, no longer can you see
You've left your soul somewhere that you can never be
In this place you've gone you see no light inside
In this place you've gone i'm hoping that you die

And when the night is calling i won't hear your cries
And when the dark is falling i won't hear your lies

Every word you've told and every tear you've spilled
Falls into emptiness for every chance you've killed
You'd walk away right now if you could find a way
For more attention drawn towards every game you play

And when the night is calling i won't hear your cries
Just empty words beneath a foolish frail disguise
