It's late in the evening

And you're breathing with someone else

You come home to call me

And I ask what you've been doing with yourself

And you say nothing at all

You say nothing at all

Your flight is longer than usual

And your conscience ain't no company

I'm there smiling and warm I missed you so

And can't wait to show you how I feel

But you feel nothing at all

There we were

Never strangers before

There was a light that shined on us

But now there's nothing at all

You should've taken a look around

Before you laid that woman down

You better get a hold of yourself

Cause there's a woman here

Who's willing to try

Weeks go by

And your mind seems preoccupied
I feel a piece missing here
But when I ask you about what's going on
You say it's all me my dear
So I thought nothing at all
I thought nothing at all
You should've taken a look around
Before you laid that woman down
You better get a hold of yourself
Cause there's a man in you about to die
With nothing
With nothing
