Putrescine and cadaverine
 The pungent twins of putridity
 Colorless and syrupy
 Biogenic amines...
 Putrescine and cadaverine
 Vapor of ornithine
 The stench of death visits me
 In the morgue laboratory...
 (Perfume of rot...heady, thick and hot)
 Putrescine and cadaverine
 Brothers in liquidity
 Fuming stench of carcass stink
 Noisome gas, fetid glee...
 Putrescine and cadaverine
 Ambassadors of ripened reek
 Breaking down dead protein
 Egressing odors miasmically...
 (Sickening stink...makes watering eyes blink)
 These dual chemical compounds, released shortly after death
 Cloud the pleasant morgue ambiance with their foul, rotten breath
 Fraternaly bound to haunt swollen distended bodies
 Their chemical reactions clash amidst rank autopsies...
 NH₂(CH₂)₄NH₂...Putrescine!
 C₅H₁₄N₂...Cadaverine!
 NH₂(CH₂)₄NH₂...Putrescine!
 C₅H₁₄N₂...Cadaverine!
 Gorges rise and heave with the stench
 A symphony of sickness, perfumed with putrescence
 While affronted senses nauseously totter and lurch
 The carcass breeds odor, and chemically gives birth...
 NH₂(CH₂)₄NH₂...Putrescine!
 C₅H₁₄N₂...Cadaverine!
 NH₂(CH₂)₄NH₂...Putrescine!
 C₅H₁₄N₂...Cadaverine!
 The ripened tang of gaseous decomposition let loose in the morgue
 Overtaxed fans strain to aerate the grave-ly polluted

ward
Tumefied decedents belch their chemical cohorts into the air
The airborne corpse-whiff adheres to fabrics, skin, and hair
(Acrid reek...odiferous cadaver leak)
