And if this day should go on forever and your hand never lost its grip, i'd never doubt or be in need, lonsome, would be bleached from my mind It's hard to write a sad song when you're happy, that's why i've done none for you, tell me when i'm wrong and forgetful, that you always will be true And just to know that you'll be comin home, to hear the sound of your keys, hangin' up your coat in the hallway, well i will never doubt or be in need And sometimes i wonder just who you are, what brought us so close together, it's a certain kind of magic, one to never question or take for granted or take for granted
And just to knowÂ....
To hear the rattle of your keys, hangin' up your bag in the hallwayÂ...
