How did i live without the summer where our hearts were so much warmer and she says everyone leaves and i only expect that much from you keep me hanging like your pictures on the wall she said there isn't a difference here at all is it so just accept the fact that we can't out last our photographs this time it's just a fact of our lives everything will one day divide one day we will die turn our backs and change our minds we grow apart start separate lives forget our past who we've become knows nothing of the things we've done and all i have to say is to live your life today cause

7 seconds
could wash it all away

I've gotten myself used to the idea of playing it safe for all these years wrapped up in cautious boundaries knowing there was always more to be no one ever told me that forever would be so very clever and all this time would melt away into remembering all the times we shared cause we turn our backs and change our minds

water water everywhere spinning circles while I'm swimming in your stare

knows nothing of the things we've done and all i have to say is to live your life today
