

My Epic

"You Know We All Love You"

Visit "You Know We All Love You" on MotoLyrics.com

You'll paint this town black with the laws that you craft
Then turn it all red with the fires they set

As faith consents to arrogance
You name their plague with elegance
The judgment's made but don't forget
'You were never one of them'

We're all trying
To find our way in the dark
But your lanterns look more like torches
And your rescue coercion and you stand so confident
If he's so holy why aren't you trembling?

The fire's is in your house!
And there's no time left to sort this out
All of us are guilty men
There is no line between us and them
There's no place for entitlement
For mercy falls on shattered men
And God will crush the prideful ones
I never knew you

Fear and trembling brothers

Visit My Epic page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.