I am the big man restless the living past and future a fraction of a second and now is lost forever my mirror image a picture in the static transcending through the present a fracture in the rhythm electric icon culture in twenty frames a second bright confusion controlling my emotions I keep my mind sedated with useless calculations I see that time is endless and shrink to insect size

I leave the flow of time free from gravitation
I leave the flow of time
free from respiration in segments days are passing relentless as a legion yet silent like assassins a poison in my bloodstream reluctant but impatient I sit and measure minutes so conscious counting fragments my lasting moments vanish

my mode of operation is two-dimension thinking I keep my world from growing ignoring all perspective in perfect isolation I freeze my lust for learning in stillness beauty lingers as rivers in the winter my senses tuned to nothing a nervous system shutdown in blissful meditation I'm safe from stimulation I don't believe in heaven and science can not help me retreating from the living I leave the flow of time
