So she tells a man: Lets go fishing,
We'll go tomorrow morning when the sun rise
And then she said she want's to take her kids in Thats a boy there's twelve and her daughter there's four with angel eyes
So they get there
And the sun is barely risen
This side of the spot where the fish is plentyfull with the tight
Get out there,
pose that smile that said: The fish is jumping Then they heard a splash but it sounded bigger than fish size

The twelve year old screams: Mom
And mom screams back: The baby was hold in your arm
When I was dirty, seconds ago, saw you jumped in
Or come on over nothing
But then...

Something told mon to look toward the light
But the sun was yellow
It had turned white
So she listen and swam
She swam for the light
Like the Micheling man
She swam with such might
She spotted the baby
And she was on her back
Just as the light set
Sunrise was heavens track
She turn the baby over
Her eyes was still blue
The baby had a smile and said:

I was waiting for you
Mom, I was waiting for you
Your baby

Momma
I love you
And I was waiting for you
Hey
I was waiting for you, uh
I was waiting for you
Momma
I was waiting for you, love you momma
