i don` t have the answers to the questions in this life so open those in me at times this world feels like a prison to an anxious soul is waiting just to be set free but ill hold to my hold and these things long ago if you will trust in me i` ll take you to a land where you will see nobody will die anymore no one will hurt like before nobody will say goodbye no tears will fill our eyes no one will do without no curse no fear or doubt won` t you take my hand and go with me to the promised land the cold winds of the earth the multitude will gather in the promised land from every ration every generation unified we rise up hand in hand together we` ll stand as one the fears we` ve overcome
