(I don't want to see tomorrow,
Unless I see it with you.)

Tomorrow, so they say

Will be a lovely day,

A bright new sun will suddenly break through,

But I don't want to see tomorrow,

Unless I see it with you.

Tomorrow, so I hear

The clouds will disappear,

The door to happiness will open wide.

But I don't want to see tomorrow,

Unless you're there by my side.

Don't want to walk alone,

Don't want to dream alone,

Just want you close to my heart.

For if your love is gone,

How can I face the dawn of

Sunday, or monday?

I just can't face one day...

Until you say you're mine,

Oh, darling, please be mine

And make each bright tomorrow young and new.

But I don't want to face tomorrow

Unless I see it with you.

(tomorrow, so I hear

The clouds will disappear,

The door to happiness will open wide.)

But I don't want to see tomorrow,

Unless I see it with you.
