If they had ever told me how sweet a kiss could be

I would have said "impossible, impossible for me"

And if they said I'd find you beyond the rainbow's end

I would have said "impossible, impossible, my friend"

To dream about what might have been

Is strange enough for me

But now it seems I'm living in

A dream too beautiful to be

If they had said a moonbeam could calm a stormy sea

I would have said "impossible" but now at last I see

That nothing is impossible if you are here with me

I would have said "impossible" but now at last I see

That nothing is impossible if you are here with me
