standing at the chalkboard of life.
look to see what i can erase scrub real hard nothing comes off, if it helped there is no trace mistakes are many, achievements are more, yes this life- heaven and hell did i help you friend on your way? if i did then i have lived so well let whats in bold not cloud your sight, success is many mistakes are few, everyone hits that hard time of life, sometimes a chance will show what they can do you see your life through gods eyes now, on that chalkboard in the sky you see the struggles the pain and the guilt, but now you finally understand why my child he whispers with love, you have bettered the human race, you tripped and fell then you got up, with a friend looked death in the face do not look at the chalkboard more, as he erased mistakes with ease wake up now you slumber so deep, go back to life live as you please walk the halls let everyone know, tell your friends watch their faces glow, let them know how much you care, for tomorrow life might not be there time to take this life as a gift, not as endless day and night shifts i for one have come to know, for now and ever i will not let go
