Grievances reached no words to be said
Barrier breached now come lay your head
And she's found a new way her hands letting go, hurting so

You've too much to say your new words heard old,
letting go
Down on your knees it's a long extra mile, letting go
Giving your faith just for a smile

Finding some way to go crawling back again
She wonders why, boy didn't run
Remembering two who had something special then Sometime, someday there'll be only one

Passages preached, notions of warmth
Elasticity reached allegiance near torn
And she's flying away to new foreign lands, hurting so

Your searching for faults on grounds that you stand,
Without her the dream it ceases to be, letting go Tomorrow you'll wake and maybe you'll see

Finding some way to move along again
We wonder why, why ever you've gone?
Remembering two, who had something special then
What time today, there'll be only one

One understanding, one thought that she left you
One more that takes it, one less that makes you whole
One understanding, one thought that she left you
One more that takes it, one less that makes you whole

She's seeking the truth, the words that she left, ohh
Riddled by ask and all out of breath
Resounding the voice, reconciled song, letting go
Created the choice, will you stand strong?

Finding the way, pushing along my friend
Seeing the worth in all that you've done
Remembering two who had something special then

Sometime, today there'll be only
Looks like today, there'll be only
Now on your way, you'll only be one
