Somewhere down inside me
There's a new sensation
Out there on the edge there is no turning back
I began to feel aware of a different kind of Power in the air

Like a key in the door, like an opening window
Something had begun
Like a key in the door, like an opening window
I found something new under the sun

God began to deal with me in different circles
I began to hear him like I never had
While I was playing rock n' roll
He began to feel the silence in my soul
Like a key in the door, like an opening window
Something had begun
Like a key in the door, like an opening window
I found something new under the sun

Thought the seeds of happiness
Had been planted in my bones
The soil had too much emptiness
To ever have a home
And when things didn't go my way
I went right back to yesterday
And no one seemed to know the way back home
I'll just find my way alone

So the key in the door, like a opening window
At some point I lost the glory
Like a key in the door, like a opening window
I went back into my history
Like a key in the door, like a opening window
Open just a crack
Like a key in the door, like a opening window
When strings got rough I started looking back
