Oh I once had something,
Something that was so good,
Better than the last thing I touched,
Then I turned right around,
On that something,
I guess I figured I didn't like it that much,

Oh yeah the grass is green,
But can you tell me can you feel it,
I wanna feel it,
Oh yeah the grass is green,
But I think I stained my jeans and now everybody knows that I've been in it,

I am a believer,
But as I was standing,
In line somebody took my place,
Yes I'm a believer never mind what they say I've got so tired along the way, hey,

Oh yeah the grass is green,
But can you tell me can you feel it,
I just wanna feel,
Oh yeah the grass is green,
But I think I stained my jeans and now everybody knows
that I've been in it,

And I've got a skeleton that's deeper than any closet and a bomb that I will drop,
On it,
But you opened up to me,
So I could finally see the,
Beauty in your dishonesty,
Yeah,

Oh yeah the grass is green,
But can you tell me can you feel it,
I just wanna feel,
Oh yeah the grass is green,
But I think I stained my jeans and now baby you can tell
that I've been in it,

Oh yeah the grasss is green,
But it's not what it seems cause when you think you want it you just need it,
Forget just what you need,
The clock is tickin' and this life is a train man I think you're on it,

And it's what you wanted,
And it's what you wanted,
And it's what you needed,
Or is it what you wanted,
Is it what I needed,
Or what you wanted...
