Some might say life's a rich tapestry, not me
To me it's more like an odyssey
Not knowing where I've gone and where I've been
Not knowing who I am and who I'll be

And I'm scared, so scared of what the future holds,
And I'm scared, so scared of becoming old

Sometimes I wanna run, just run... run away
I wanna run, just run, run away
I wanna run, run away

So what's the reason? Tell me, why am I here?
Clutching the paper cup I've filled with tears
You pay the ferry man and you take the ride
Just like you're born to live, you're born to die

And I'm scared, so scared of what the future holds,
And I'm scared, so scared of becoming old

Sometimes I wanna run, just run... run away
I wanna run, just run, run away
I wanna run, run away

I've been running all my life
Believe me when I say you can run but you can't hide
You can swim against the tide,
You can't get a refund on this ticket,
It's your life, it's your life, but sometimes...

Sometimes I wanna run, just run... run away
I wanna run, just run, run away
I wanna run, run away
