You to me, to me, you're lying from the start to me, to me
You're twisting up your heart on me, on me You're changing every week on me in what you seek And I can't talk to you 'cause something's caught my tongue
It's me, not you, but if I was with anyone but you Then I would speak my mind in full, so yeah, it's you You and me, and me we're really quite the same in how we see It's just in how we think we don't agree, it's just in how

We're told to think where we don't click And them to me, to me, those people talking there I see, I see, they make it awfully hard for me to be Content in who I am with you I need some truth now We never said it would be easy, don't be surprised it's not that easy
Now I feel hot and cold in what I'm told but if it was not like this we'd have nothing
